

A little Valentine's twist

Valentine's Day gifts can get a little tried and tested over the years, so it's up to you to spice things up. female hears what three eligible bachelors have to say and gives their favourite gifts a twist.

Chan Shijin, 27
DIRECTOR/BUSINESS OWNER

“Someone once took me by surprise by taking me out for a very romantic dinner which she took months to plan, and gave me a nice handmade gift which she spent weeks making. That simple gift and effort from her heart easily swept me off my feet. What I treasure most was the fact that I was truly loved at that very moment.”

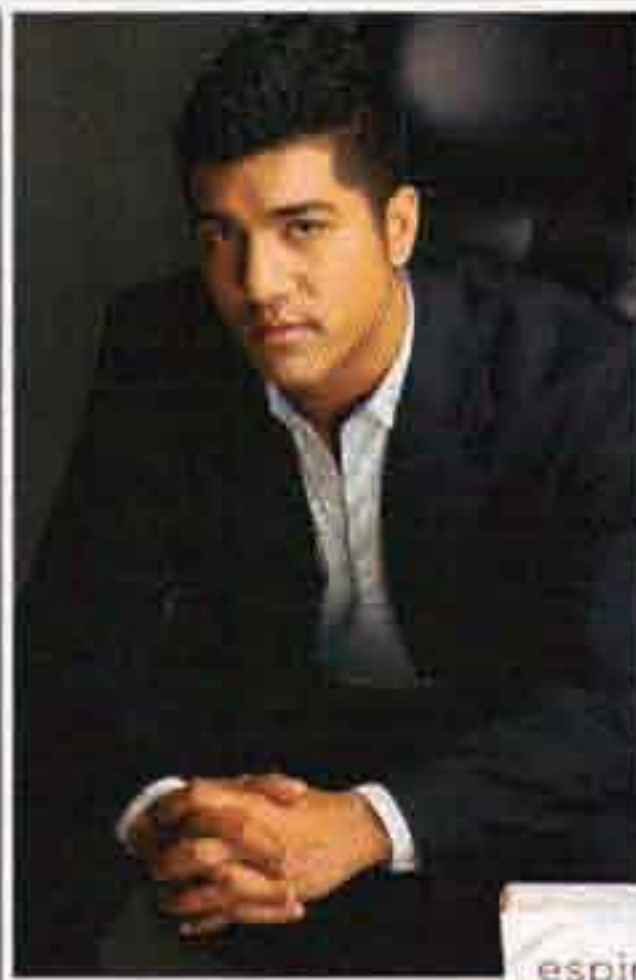

THE GIFT Something handmade
THE TWIST Handmade gifts can be technologically updated these days. Create a video with a personal message from you in a raw format. It can be more heartfelt without any editing done because your true emotions are transparent.

Cheah Chee Teong, 26
BRAND MARKETING

“There will be no poems and no fancy words; all I want her to know is that I'm honoured to share this special day with her.”

THE GIFT Quality time
THE TWIST If love letters and poems don't do the trick for you, there are many other ways to spend time together without talking. You can go for a day out at your favourite spa together and get a couple massage while breathing in each other's enticing aroma.

Roen Nagapalan, 28
ACCOUNT DIRECTOR

“I would like a simple yet thoughtful Valentine's celebration, like cooking a nice meal for my date, then a few drinks after for some quality bonding time.”

THE GIFT A home-cooked meal
THE TWIST Have a home-cooked meal... cooked by a professional! Hire a chef or a caterer for the night who will come to your house and cook up a feast for the both of you as well as clean up after! It's like having a whole restaurant to yourselves.
